

We travelled on The Jahan in the low season from Siem Reap through to Ho Chi Minh city. The cruise ship has a variety of rooms – we stayed in a signature suite. Our room was spacious with a large bathroom and well served. Each cabin has its own private balcony which is something that not all cruise ships on the Mekong offer – and the views!!! We travelled in the low season which meant the boat was only half full but I think this made the experience better – there was more room to spread out and you could find time to yourself if you wanted. The food was excellent ( it felt like all we did was eat and drink) and there was plenty of choice at the bar. The wine included in the mini bar was average but lovely Australian wines served with meals. Every day there were 2 shore excursions which were on the whole great experiences, and felt authentic (a couple of them were a bit meh) but you can choose to not go on them or venture off the boat and do your own thing if you prefer. All tips etc are covered by the Jahan on the excursions so you don't have to worry about sorting that out. The staff on the ship were all lovely and so accommodating, nothing was too much trouble, but they were also unobtrusive. We cannot recommend this cruise line highly enough - so much value for money.
